DDI CHRONO

Rear Admiral James E. Service, USN
President, Naval War College
Newport, Rhode Island 02841

Dear Admiral Service,

As you recall, we agreed last year to detail [redacted] to you to conduct research at the Center for Naval Warfare Studies as the culmination of his work on Soviet combat models. His work since we last corresponded now leads me to believe that the interests of our two organizations would be better served if he discontinued his participation in the Advanced Analyst Development Program early and applied his findings to a number of Soviet naval issues being addressed by our Office of Scientific and Weapons Research. [redacted]

This, of course, would mean that [redacted] will not be available to the Center for War Gaming for the six month period which we had previously discussed. It is my understanding that Captain Brisbois concurs in this change. I would encourage you, nevertheless, to call upon [redacted] for brief visits to the Newport area whenever you see fit. I believe, for instance, that your staff will find the results of his future efforts in such areas as Soviet SSBN/SLBM operations, antiship cruise missile targeting, and C-cubed to be both interesting and practically useful. [redacted]
